Help Choose Speakers for TEDxIndianapolis 2014 – Come Vote Friday, June 6th

Calling all central Indiana readers:

Please help select the next group of great ideas to be shared in the TEDxIndianapolis 2014 conference.

It's free to come see all the submissions and place your vote. Which ideas do YOU believe should be shared this year?

The organizers say there are more than one hundred applicants for only about 18 openings, and they want the public to come vote on which speakers and ideas will make the line-up for this year's event.

Three reasons to come:

1. To influence which ideas will be shared on stage and on the web this coming October,
2. To meet a lot of intelligent and interesting people from this area who come together both to support their own submissions and to vote for others people's,
3. AND to see all the submissions which won't make it onto the stage. I'm sure there will be too many great ideas to fit in the available time slots, and this may be your only chance to see them—you could make some great connections!

...And if that's not enough, stick around Fountain Square afterward to enjoy IDADA's First Friday Art Tour and one of the many outstanding places to eat and drink in the area.
